BRIAN GEORGE JOINS EPSA AS DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON, DC – As of August 26, 2019, Brian George joined the Electric Power Supply Association (EPSA) as Director, Strategic Policy and Government Affairs. Brian brings to EPSA extensive knowledge and expertise on wholesale power market issues informed by his time at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) as an economist in both the Office of Enforcement and the Office of Energy Policy and Innovation. He was also technical advisor to FERC Commissioner Rob Powelson and a Senior Policy Advisor at American Petroleum Institute on market development and wholesale power market issues.

Todd Snitchler, EPSA President and CEO, said, “We are delighted to add Brian to the EPSA team. Brian’s experience and work on electricity markets and policy will add to our already strong team. At this crucial time for our industry, having high quality thinkers like Brian will help us work to solve some of our industry’s biggest challenges.”

Brian received a M.A. in Economics from American University, and a B.S. in Economics and Computer Information Science from West Virginia Wesleyan College.

-EPSA-

Launched over 20 years ago, EPSA is the national trade association representing leading independent power producers and marketers. EPSA members provide reliable and competitively priced electricity from environmentally responsible facilities using a diverse mix of fuels and technologies. Power supplied on a competitive basis collectively accounts for 40 percent of the U.S. installed generating capacity. EPSA seeks to bring the benefits of competition to all power customers.
